Selectman Demands Action On Shawsheen Bridge Repairs

Wilmington — Selectman Frank Hagerty, provoked by another delay by the Boston and Maine RR in repairing the Shawsheen Ave. bridge, demanded Monday evening that the matter be brought directly to the attention of Governor Furcolo.

Prompted by receipt of a letter from the RR which notified Town Manager Courtney that the RR intended to take no action until the Town assured the RR that the town would see that the bridge was not "overloaded" again. The Selectmen investigated every avenue open to them to force action on part of the RR to repair the bridge.

Mr. Courtney reported that at the time of the meeting held at the DPW, the RR promised to start work on the bridge within three weeks of that time (Dec. 27), while the DPW conducted a study in an effort to eliminate heavy trucking on the bridge, trucking that the RR claims is the cause of the failure of the bridge.

Mr. Courtney expressed amazement at the delaying tactics now being used by the RR, which are contrary to what Mr. Courtney understood the arrangement to be at the time of the meeting.

The letter from the RR follows:

Town Manager Joseph Courtney
Dear Sir:

With reference to the meeting held in the DPW office at 160 Nashua St., Boston on Dec. 27, 1957, with the various state representatives regarding the proposed repairs to Bridge 15.67, Shawsheen Ave. at Wilmington.

At that time, it was agreed that the DPW would send the traffic engineer to Wilmington to study the situation and obtain with respect to eliminating the use of the bridge by heavy trucks, which causes failures to same.

As stated, we do not propose to repair the bridge until we are given assurance that it will not be overloaded over its present capacity.

Has any progress been made in the study for restricting the use of the bridge?

Yours very truly,
S. G. Phillips,
Vice-president, engineering

Selectman Hagerty instructed the Town Manager to take the matter directly to the Governor as a last resort in order to end the 'stalling" and to have the bridge put in passable condition. The TM, pointing out that too much time would be lost in waiting for an appointment, said that he would go again to the DPW and see what action they could take.

During the discussion, a number of proposals were made and discarded, including one by Chairman DeFelice to build a road near Dames Garage, forcing the RR to build and maintain a grade crossing. Proposals to take the matter to court were also rejected as too time consuming.

Despite the efforts of the Selectmen to find a solution to the serious problem, no practical method of hurrying the RR could be found. Town Manager Courtney's opinion was that the RR is using this as an opportunity to hinder their main competitor, the trucking firms, and to force the town to assume responsibility for the bridge.

One proposal by the RR is to cut a road from Shawsheen Ave. to Burlington Ave. and use the Burlington Ave. bridge.

DE FELICE PROPOSES VETERANS MEMORIAL FOR COMMON

Wilmington — Discussion Monday evening by members of the Planning Board and the Board of Selectmen relative to placing an article in the Warrant for the coming Town Meeting, brought forth from Chairman Nicholas DeFelice a plan he said he has been working on for two months.

The Planning Board members Danny Gillis and William Beers, present at the Selectmen's meeting, told the Selectmen that now that the high school athletic field could be used for sport practice, they felt that the common could be at last improved and brought from its present status as an alternating dust and mud bowl to its intended state of a peaceful beauty-spot.

Mr. DeFelice then revealed investigations he had been making into suitable veterans memorials, revering the heroes of World Wars I, II and the Korean War. A portfolio of pictures of monuments was studied.

Present plans meeting approval of both boards include shrubbery ringing the area and turf with walks providing access to and from schools on each side of the common.

An article will be placed in the Warrant asking approximately $10,000 to complete the project.

NICHOLAS DE FELICE APPOINTED CHAIRMAN OF NEW COMMITTEE

CONCRETE EVIDENCE OF TRAFFIC RELIEF

SOME OF THE DAILY AVERAGE OF 50,000 cars now passing through the toll gates of the recently opened Connecticut Turnpike, and more than half the trucks which formerly used paralleling Route 1 are now rolling over the heavy-duty concrete pavement of the new interstate highway. In addition, are thousands of cars and trucks which enter and leave, without toll charges, by way of the 90 interchanges scattered between the eight toll stations along the 129-mile route between Greenwich, Ct., and Killingly at the Rhode Island line.

ARTICLE TO BE PLACED IN WARRANT FOR NORTH WILMINGTON PARKING

Varied solutions and various areas of blame were tossed around at Monday's Selectmen's meeting as the parking problem at the North Wilmington Depot was discussed.

Selectman Charles Black cited the problem as the "most dangerous problem in town, and one which should be part of a program for redevelopment". While blame for the situation was shifted from one shoulder to another Selectman Donand Kidder placed the blame at the hands of the police department, whom, he said, he felt were responsible for double parking as they did not stop it. "If police action were taken against the offenders, they would stop double parking," Mr Kidder said.

Town Manager Courtney placed the blame on the B. and M. who, he said do nothing to provide parking facilities for their patrons who park there all day, while using the RR. Mr. Kidder however, claimed the fault lay with declining commuter service. This remark was promptly disagreed with by Planning Board member William Beers, who feels that service is improving and traffic at the depot along with it.

Mr. Kidder, fearing that the shopping center might swing to a spot near Concord St. and Rte 2 when the new road is completed, declined to go along with current plans to go to Town Meeting with a plan to obtain a parcel of land between the depot and the new post office for a parking area.

Some of the Selectmen seemed to feel that the merchants were responsible for providing parking areas near their stores, while others expressed the opinion that the Town should take action and avoid possibility of an accident without judging where the responsibility lay.

A vote of confidence for the Planning Board action found only Mr. Kidder dissenting.

WE MADE A MISTAKE

HENRY BILLAUER, JEWELER, PHILANTHROPIST, BUSINESS MAN, CIVIC LEADER, DEAD

Henry Billauer died at the Choate Memorial Hospital, Tues. Jan. 21. The passing of Mr. Billauer will cause a shock to the community, the adopted city which he loved and in which his customers representing three generations in families resided. Mr. Billauer conducted a jewelry store, and if there was ever a businessman who applied the Golden Rule yardstick to his every transaction, it was Henry.

Mr. Billauer was born in Poland, 69 years ago, and came to this country as a young man. He was a watchmaker and watch repair man. Watchmaking had been a tradition in his family for the three generations preceding him.

Henry Billauer

It was 36 years ago, that Mr. Billauer established the business bearing his name in this city specializing in watch repair but carrying a limited line of jewelry at that time.

Simultaneously with his establishment in Woburn, Mr. Billauer became an active and energetic part of community life.

Any worthwhile project that was launched in the city found Mr. Billauer with his helping hand and magnanimous heart quietly but effectively taking part.

His activities knew no limits of color, creed or race, and that sterling quality was ever evident in his business dealing with his customers.

Mr. Billauer was a devout Jew. His attitude toward his fellow man was one of under standing and encouragement. When church sought to promote a drive for a worthwhile cause, Mr. Billauer readily contributed goods for awards or money donations. The Billauer scholarship award was an annual event at the graduation of St. Charles Parochail School. Other church organizations, Catholic, Protestant or Jewish, always could count upon Mr. Billauer's attitude to assist in the promotion of religion within any denomination.

Mr. Billauer was a mild-mannered man, and his customers who purchased any item of jewelry, from an ordinary piece of costume jewelry to the most expensive dinamonds found Mr. Billauer almost over-willing to please.

He knew the financial limitations of the people he dealt with, and counselled them accordingly in investments in jewelry, even to sustaining a loss, which he could have overcome by remaining silent.

Mr. Billauer was a member of many organizations and when he enlisted in any business social or fraternal group, he was never merely a dues-paying member.

He was heart and soul in the work, and sought assignments for work toward the success of the club or fraternity.

In the Kiwanis Club, he was chairman of the church program committee for many years and at every meeting he would have as his guest a Protestant minister or a Catholic priest.

He was also a member of Crystal Fount Lodge of Odd Fellows #109, Woburn Grange, B'Nai Brith and the Y.M.C.A. Men's Club.

Mr. Billauer married Alice Mochedlover, who was his helpmate in business as well as his spouse and who survives him, together with two daughters, Rosemary B. Conroy of Waltham and Miriam R. Raymond of Salem. Also surviving are ten grandchildren.

Services for Mr. Billauer were held at the Woburn Hebrew Center, Green Street, Woburn, Thursday, January 23, at 3:00 p.m.

SELECTMEN COMMEND LUCCI'S MARKET

Wilmington — The action taken by John Lucci, owner of Lucci's Supermarket, in tearing down his former store in order to expand his parking area, was heartily commended by the Selectmen Monday evening.

During a discussion about the parking problem in North Wilmington, Mr. Lucci's recent decision to remove the building in order to facilitate parking at Perry's corner was mentioned and received much notice.

Work started last week on the removal operation.

Between The Laughs

JUST ABOUT EVERYBODY wants to be a TV star. Looks easy, doesn't it? "Working" one-half hour a week. The facts, of course, are different. Work goes on constantly behind the scenes before that one-half hour show goes on. Look what happened to Danny Thomas recently, for example. The star of The Danny Thomas Show (CBS-TV Mon. 9-9:30 EST) completed a 9-city junket in nine days. "It has been great," Danny Thomas said when he boarded the 20th Century for home, "but next time I am going to read the fine print in those schedules. I didn't even have 20 minutes for a haircut." And no wonder, there were 65 individual press interviews, 12 local radio interviews, 2 appearances on top network shows, fund-raising speeches and visits to hospitals. Sleep was one of those things that happened in between, whenever he got a free minute.

Single Window Usable 3 Ways

A window style that has gained rapidly in popularity because of its versatility is the awning-hopper-casement window of ponderosa pine.

Built as a unit, complete with sash, frame, and hardware, the window is installed as an awning style by placing it so that it opens up and outward. For a hopper window, the unit is turned over when it is installed so that it opens down and inward.

For casement installation, the window is installed on one end, opening outward to one side. Many builders and home owners doing remodeling install these windows in rows for bedrooms and kitchens, and in tiers of two or more in living and dining areas.

SCIENCE IN YOUR LIFE

End To Dizziness

The familiar sensation of dizziness is a by-product of one of the many senses we have in addition to the traditional five – the sense of balance.

The body's position in space is reported to the brain by a delicate apparatus called the inner ear. Rapid changes in position – such as being whirled around and around – disturb the inner ear, causing it to misreport. The result is the false sensation that the room is in motion around you, usually coupled with a falling sensation. Damage to the inner ear can make dizziness more or less permanent. Doctors refer to this highly unpleasant situation as Meniere's syndrome.

Sufferers from this disease, and people unusually prone to dizziness, no longer have to suffer in silence, however. A new combination drug, called Antivert, goes right to the source of the trouble. It contains meclizine, which calms down the agitated inner ear, and nicotinic acid (one of the B vitamins), which increases the flow of blood through the brain.

Up to now there has been no single, simple treatment for dizziness. Physicians have tried a number of remedies without consistent success.

New Uses Suggested For China Cabinets

Stock china cabinets have many uses besides storing family china or glassware. The cabinets, made of ponderosa pine, can be used as enclosures for high fidelity music components and records, as book shelves, for special flower arrangements, and as a special exhibition place for rocks and shells, or other collectors' items.

The bottom portion of the cabinets can be altered as a hiding place for one of the new thin television receivers.

Available from building material dealers, ponderosa pine cabinets can be finished in rich natural wood tones or painted to harmonize with room decor.

Modern Roofing Result Of 30-Year Research

The asphalt roofing industry recently began its 31st year of research work at the National Bureau of Standards of the U. S. Department of Commerce.

To the home-owner, this means that asphalt shingles produced today are the result of long and continuing scientific research to make them give dependable protection as well as an attractive appearance.

Research over the years has given modern roofing materials color, resistance to sun, wind, and damage from ice and snow, and more reliable application methods.

"Come Quickly . . . I'm Drinking Stars!"

Champagne, the traditional wine of anniversaries, is celebrating a birthday of its own this year—the centenary of its first commercial production in California, the Wine Land of America.

Appropriately, lovely Dee Hardy, the California Vintage Queen of 1957-58, lifts a glass of the pale gold, sparkling liquid, and toasts that historic occasion, and at the same time offers the hope that 1958 will be a happy year for all men of good will, everywhere.

Her gown is symbolic. Its formal elegance expresses the distinction that Champagne enjoys among all wines, and its satin texture, the smoothness with which Champagne appeals to the palate. So, too, is the black, star-spangled, midnight sky a symbol, reminiscent of the ecstatic words of the 17th Century Benedictine monk, who accidentally discovered the secret of Champagne at the Abbey of Hautvilliers in France. This churchman, Dom Perignon, upon first tasting the bubbling liquid, is reported to have cried out: "Come quickly, I'm drinking stars!"

Behind Queen Dee is the skyline of modern San Francisco, the city in which the Sainsevain Brothers in 1857 produced and marketed in case lots their own Champagne, romantically named, "Sparkling California".

The secondary fermentation took place in their wine cellars at Montgomery and Jackson Streets, now a part of San Francisco's bustling financial district. The wine they used came originally from their El Aliso vineyard, located on the site of the Los Angeles Union Station of today.

The California Champagne toast by Queen Dee to the New Year of 1958 echoes another one made just 100 years ago in Washington, D. C. The person lifting the glass on that occasion was not a lovely young woman, but James Buchanan, President of the United States. The Sainsevain Brothers had sent him a wicker basket of their wine so that he might sip "Sparkling California" in the White House as the bells and whistles heralded the New Year of 1858.

The Sainsevain Brothers Company was the true pioneer in the long line of growers who have produced ever since California Champagnes of great distinction and renown.

CABOT LABORATORIES INSPECTING LAND OFF CONCORD ROAD

Tentative plans for the location of another plant of Godfrey L. Cabot Research Laboratories were announced yesterday at a luncheon attended by town officials.

Spokesman for the research firm, which has plants all over the world, said that the Billerica unit would locate at the site of the old Glue Factory, just off Concord Road and close to the new Route 3. He said that research and development only would be conducted at the Billerica plant. No plans, however, for buildings have been made as yet.

Cabot's nearest lab is located on Memorial Drive in Cambridge on "Research Row". The building actually houses eight different laboratories including "compounding", "physical testing"; "pigments application"; "ceramics;" "organic"; "analytical"; "electron microscope"; and "physical research laboratory."

Cabot operations have progressed for nearly three quarters of a century, and was founded by Dr. Godfrey L. Cabot in 1882. Dr. Cabot is still living and is 97 years old.

Although the Cambridge Laboratories are technical headquarters for the Cabot concern, plants and labs are located worldwide with central labs in Tampa and Texas.

Attending the important luncheon at Hayes Steak House yesterday were O. L. Fitz Randolph, director of public relations; Derk Ryan, specialist on industrial sites; Arthur Collins, assistant to technical director; Daniel Munsell, assistant to director of research of new products department; and Arthur Phillips, corporations attorney.

Representing the town were Arthur Hallenborg, Chairman, Board of Selectmen; Selectman Stanley J. Bocko, Selectman Gilbert Griggs, Public Works Administrator Oliver "Ed" Strong, Finance Committee Chairman Irving Folk, Planning Board Chairman Gordon Brainerd, Town Moderator Marion Gould, Town Clerk Mildred Westhaver, Industrial Commission Chairman A. A. Smith, Assessor Maurice Spaulding, Building Inspector Lawrence DeBenedictis, Finance Committee Member Marion Finnigan, Industrial Commission Member Claire Stoker, Board of Health Chairman Frederick Gould, Roger Hodgdon of the Water Commission, Francis Emmons and John W. Fleming, local surveyors who are working on the site.

Oil Brings Out Beauty of Pine

If you like the beauty of natural pine woodwork, finish it with an oil and wax treatment used by many furniture craftsmen.

The method, using only refined linseed oil and lemon oil, gives the wood a satiny finish and brings out the clear pine grain without darkening it excessively. As time passes, the finish mellows into a soft, golden brown. This technique also adds natural preservations to the wood.

Here are 3 easy-to-follow steps:

1. Sand wood smooth. This may not be necessary on woodwork such as panel or louver doors, windows, and kitchen cabinets of ponderosa pine. These units are smooth sanded and ready for installation when purchased from a building material dealer.

2. Saturate a piece of cheesecloth with linseed oil and apply liberally to the wood, covering it completely. Let the oil soak in until dry. If a deeper color is desired, apply several coats, allowing each to dry.

3. When the linseed oil is dry to the touch, apply lemon oil liberally, rubbing it in. When this is dry, rub vigorously with a soft cloth for a faint polish. If a brighter sheen is preferred, paste wax may be applied.

SCIENCE IN YOUR LIFE

Going Abroad?

If you're planning to spend your vacation this year in a foreign country – or several of them – the chances are good that you are the envy of your non-traveling friends. And they're right, for going abroad can be a great adventure.

You may also have been the target of dire warnings about the health problems you will encounter. Some of these are nonsense, but it's a good idea to know exactly what health problems you are likely to encounter, and how to deal with them.

One authoritative source is Henry Milo's The Traveler's Health Handbook, an attractive, illustrated 16-page booklet that covers everything from seasickness to shots. Among other things, Milo discusses proper wardrobes, drinking water, altitude, allergies, tired feet, how to cope with hot weather, and insect bites. It is quick and easy reading, and it takes up so little space that you can keep it handy for ready reference no matter where you go.

The booklet can't be bought, but you can have it for the price of a post card. It is distributed as a public service by a large pharmaceutical company. Just write to Dept. C., Chas. Pfizer & Co., Inc., 630 Flushing Avenue, Brooklyn, N.Y.

SKIER CAUGHT IN ACT

A skier at Stowe, Vermont, executes an expert jump turn, and a camera fan gets an exciting movie closeup.

You can catch all the action, beauty and color of a snowtime weekend if you remember to bring your camera along. The bright blues, reds and greens of skiers' clothes in sharp contrast to the white countryside will make brilliant color shots. But remember that it's better to take them with the sun to the side so that skiers, trees and bushes throw patches of shade as well as rich color, lending more contrast to your scenes. Sidelighting also brings out the sparkling texture of snow.

On gray days the snow comes out dull, so it's best to take pictures when the sun is bright. But remember that shadows under a blue sky photograph blue. If you want to eliminate the bluish tinge use a skylight filter.

Wintertime Punch . . . Serve It Piping!

This hot fruit punch will chase away the chills on a wintery night. It's a perfect after-skating or skiing drink, wonderful to serve in front of a log-burning fire.

The base of this cheery drink is hot tea, spiced with cloves and allspice, and sweetened with Sucaryl. To the sweetened tea, you add cider (or apple juice), orange juice and lemon juice. And, of course, you serve the drink piping hot, from a brightly polished brass kettle, if you like, or from a tea kettle or carafe.

Extra point in favor of this tempting cider punch is that it's low, low in calories. Reason is that, simply by using the non-caloric sweetener, Sucaryl, rather than sugar, you cut out two-thirds of the total calories normally contained in the drink. Without adding a single calorie, this sweetener gives the punch a delightful, natural-tasting sweetness. It's delicious!

Mulled Cider

4 lemons
2 cups boiling water
8 teaspoons Sucaryl solution or 64 Sucaryl tablets
2 tablespoons tea
6 whole cloves
6 whole allspice
2 cups orange juice
2 cups apple juice or cider

Pare peel from lemons and extract juice. To the boiling water, add the peel, Sucaryl, tea and spices; steep 3 minutes. Strain. Combine orange juice and apple juice; heat, but do not boil. Add to the hot tea mixture. Just before serving, add lemon juice. Serve hot.

Makes 7 cups or 12 servings. Each serving contains 45 CALORIES; 0.5 gram protein; 0.2 gram fat; 12 grams carbohydrate. If made with sugar, each serving would contain 131 CALORIES.

PARTY GOER

Here's a dress designed for those glamorous evenings when a full-length formal is required. Printed velveteen or an embroidered cotton would be a perfect fabric for this off-the-shoulder frock made by McCall's Pattern No. 4189.

Giraffe is made of blue and white crochet cotton and is stuffed with cotton batting. Directions for making are available from National Cotton Council, P. O. Box 9905, Memphis 12, Tenn.

ACCORDION BAND REHEARSALS

Tuesday, Jan. 21, twenty student Accordion Band members and parents attended the first of this year's series or rehearsals at the Rosita Lee Piano Accodion MusiCenter, 83 Elm St., North Woburn. Members from Tewksbury, Wilmington, Pinehurst and Burlington attended.

These rehearsals will be held each Tuesday evening at 7. All Band members are urged to attend. Preparations are being made for presenting "Stars of Tomorrow" Woburn recital to be held March 15 at the Linscott School Auditorium.

All students who are not Band members, as well as those who are, are invited to participate in the recital in solos, duos, trios and quartettes. Since the date is prior to St. Patrick's day, several numbers of Irish Medleys will be included in the program.

There will also be presented a number of guest Accordionists as well as members of the teaching staff. An interesting program is assured.

The Lowell Studio group will present their recital in May, the place and date to be announced. Band rehearsals are now being held each Friday at 8:15 p.m., at the Studio, Rex Center, Lowell.

Executive Board Of Boosters Meets

Wilmington—At an executive Board meeting of the Wilmington Boosters held at the home of George Dyas, of Fairmeadow Road, Wilmington, on Wednesday, Jan. 29, plans for the next public meeting took shape.

Mr. Bellissimo, the football coach, has availibility to the films of the Wilmington-Tewksbury game of this year, and wants to show them. The Boosters are planning a meeting at the Wildwood School all-purpose room, in which to show these films. No date has been set at this writing, but this meeting will be in the very near future.

There was also some planning on the obtaining of a Sylvania Silm Line, portable television set, to be drawn some time in the Spring, about the night of the Spring Supper, which is being planned.

Speaking of supper, there was much said, in the way of thanks, for the successful way in which our Banquet went. This has been expressed before, but we are ever mindful of our backers, without whom we couldn't go forward.

The board will let the public know of the next Booster's get-together, and all that is needed is the Booster's button for admission to any of these meetings.

POLOIANS NAMED HEART FUND CHARIMEN

North Wilmington—The appointment of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Poloian, 214 Andover Street, North Wilmington as general chairmen of the 1958 Heart Fund in Wilmington was announced this week by Atty. Samuel P. Sears of Boston, state chairman.

The Heart Fund is sponsored annually in February by the Massachusetts Heart Association as this state's effort in a national battle for conquest of cardiovascular diseases, this community's foremost health problems.

February 23, Heart Sunday, climaxes the campaign with a door-to-door collection by Heart Neighbors in every community.

Mr. Poloian, an insurance executive, is secretary of the Young Republican Club of Wilmington and a member of the board of directors of employment of the Merrimac Chapter, Bentley Alumni Association. His wife, Elinor S., is a member of the Wilmington Town Republican Committee.

Sears, announcing the appointments declared:

"I am proud to announce the appointments of Wilmington's chairmen, for it is necessary that our community leadership be as capable and hard-working as is humanly possible."

"I know that this year will bring banner results in the Heart Fund campaign, and we may rest assured that medical science, now on the threshold of even more advanced knowledge and techniques, will make the finest possible use of our Heart dollars, so that we and those to come after us may live in good health."

Names of other Heart Fund leaders here will be announced soon.

MID - WINTER DOLLAR DAYS IN LOWELL

Lowell—Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week are MID-WINTER DOLLAR DAYS in Lowell stores. Thank you days of the merchants to shoppers for the patronage accorded them. This, the retailers contemplate doing through one of the greatest clearances of seasonal merchandise that the respective store managements have ever promoted.

While it has always been an acknowledged fact, foresightedness in shopping is money-saving, it has, likewise, been the basis of a big percentage of the business transacted during Dollar Days. The notable increase in the suburban shoppers in the Lowell stores during similar past three day periods, is strengthening to the intent of merchants which is that there is no better way to express appreciation to a patron than by giving him values, the attractiveness of which is so readily discernible that he will display no hesitation at all in taking advantage of the offering.

Not one member of the family need be overlooked, nor the home itself, in the money-saving purchases it will be possible to make on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week in Lowell. If you can anticipate your apparel needs for the remainder of the winter period and the early spring, and your current household requirements, you will be able to profitably obtain the same this week-end in Lowell retail stores at the lowest prices of the season. Stores of the type that do not usually stock merchandise in the price categories possible to close-out at a dollar will display comparably acceptable reduced prices on the items or commodities carried.

Naturally, the cooperating stores displaying the official signs are the ones to which your patronage should be directed.

Absence - Adolescence - Apathy

Billerica—An open letter is directed to parents of Memorial High School pupils whose attendance records are giving serious concern to school authorities and indicate existing apathy on the part of the parents.

"The 1957-1958 year opened on September 4, 1957, with a concerted attempt toward reducing high school absenteeism, dismissals, and tardinesses which had been approaching serious proportions during the previous year. Acting favorably upon recommendations submitted by the school administrators, your school committee indicated by their vote, that definite regulations were necessary to curb excessive absenteeism among high school pupils. Since September 4, 1957, a master record has been kept in the vice principal's office of all absences, dismissals, tardinesses and truancies, and it is concerning this record that I wish to present facts."

"State laws require, in effect, that every person in control of a child between the ages of seven and sixteen shall cause him to attend school. Failure to do so for seven day sessions in a period of six months makes the controlling person subject to penalization. It is stated further that no physical or mental condition, capable of correction, shall avail as an excuse unless the controlling person has employed all reasonable corrective measures for the existing conditions and the suitable instruction of the child."

"Your school department employs an attendance officer on a full time basis whose function it is to see that your child is in school. In some instances the lack of home co-operation with this officer and other school officials is appalling. The standard excuse from some parents is that the child is sick and yet we know with complete certitude that the child is working, is baby sitting, is wandering about the streets of a nearby city, or is plainly truant. If these transgressions are condoned or dismessed with a parental wink and home indifference toward school attendance, is realized by the child, you may expect a more pronounced rebellion against the laws of society as your child becomes an adult. A child that is too sick to attend school, is too sick to be out of his home.

"On an average school day my office received about seven dismissal notes, which in a shool of about 800 pupils, is no, too excessive. Some of these notes, read thusly: "I would like Johnnie excused at 11 o'clock." There is no mention of why Johnnie is to be excused, why the errand could not be done outside of school time, who is going to meet the child, or how the child is to reach his destination. As I could not possibly know the circumstance which might necessitate absence or dismissal of your child from school, it becomes your obligation to make these circumstances known to me. Also, I wish to stress that school officials are under no obligation to dismiss a child from two or three remaining class periods in a given day for any reason regardless of urgency. That we do so is a manifestation of our desire to co-operate with the home and we expect the home to reciprocate in a like manner."

"The majority of parents with children of high school age do their best to co-operate with the school in an attempt to further the best interests of the child. They realize their tremendous responsibility as parents to guide him along the path that leads him toward becoming a useful citizen in a society that is becoming more complex every day. This letter is not directed to parents of that calibre. It is directed to that parent who provides an alibi for his errant child, is openly hostile in the child's presence toward school regulations, encourages the child to work on a school day by reporting him as sick and who relegates the education of a child's mind secondary to all else."

"At a future date I hope to again provide this paper with the regulations of your high school governing absence, dismissal, tardiness, and truancy, which exist, for the good of your high school child."

Thank you,
J. David Nuttall, Vice Principal
Billerica Memorial High School

House Needs Safety Check Once A Year

A wise motorist checks his car regularly to make sure that his brakes or some other safety feature won't fail in an emergency.

For similar reasons, a wise home-owner inspects his roof periodically. He wants to make sure it protects the house as it should.

Just as brake failure could cause a fatal accident, roof leaks can cause water to short out electrical circuits.

Leaks also can weaken ceilings and damage interior walls. Rafters and roof decking as well as floor joists may warp if roof leaks are not found and stopped.

Here are four areas of potential trouble to inspect in order to prevent damage from roof leaks:

1. On a bright day go into the attic and look for tiny pin holes of light in the roof.

2. On a rainy day, use a flashlight to check under the roof for darkened, damp areas on rafters or roof decking. Damp spots sometimes indicate roof leaks.

3. Look carefully at flashing, sheet metal or roll roofing sealing off exposed areas between roofing and chimney vent stacks, and valleys. If flashing has become loose, water can get inside and cause damage.

4. Make sure roof gutters are clean and free of snow, leaves, and other debris. Water concentration from clogged roof gutters may cause leaks. To insure proper drainage, check roof gutters at least twice yearly.

Do not walk on an old weathered roof. This can start roof leaks. If the roof is old, new asphalt shingles probably can be installed over the existing roof material. Asphalt shingles are available in a wide variety of colors and help make a house more comfortable as well as distinctively attractive.

Home Buyer Can Be Sure Of Insulation

Looking for a house to buy? Here are seven questions and answers about insulation you should know when you inspect any house. They'll help you judge whether you would live comfortably in it and whether it would be economical to run:

1. What areas are insulated? Outside walls and ceilings should always be insulated. In basementless houses there should be floor insulation over crawl spaces or around the edges of a concrete slab. Insulation forms a tight blanket around house living spaces. It keeps heat in during winter, out in summer.

2. How much insulation? A 6-inch thickness of mineral wool in the ceiling, 4 inches in walls, and 2 inches in floors where necessary is recommended if a house is electrically heated or air conditioned. At least 4 inches in the ceiling, 3 inches in walls, and 2 inches in floors is recommended for houses with conventional heating systems.

3. How can proper application be checked? Although much insulation is hidden, it's possible to inspect attic or attached garage insulation. If there is a crawl space, go in and look.

4. Is insulation tightly applied? Staples used in application of batts or blanket insulation shouldn't be more than 6 inches apart.

5. Is insulation complete? Look for gaps in insulation. Odd-shaped and small spaces should be insulated. Insulation should be brought snugly up to electrical boxes, wiring, and pipes.

6. Is the vapor barrier properly installed? Insulation should have its vapor barrier toward the heated-in-winter side of walls and ceilings. The vapor barrier should be snugly applied.

7. Is the space over ceiling insulation ventilated? Ceiling insulation works better if the space between the inside surface of the roof and the outside surface of the insulation is ventilated. Louvers under eaves or at gable ends of the roof make a house more comfortable.

Drugs For Cancer

The president of the American Cancer Society recently said that progress in the fight against cancer "will come through hormones and synthesized drugs." When Dr. Lowell T. Coggeshall of the University of Chicago said this, he was not writing off the importance of preventive examinations, surgery, radiation, or the patient's own resistance to the spread of the disease.

What he meant was that medicines are now available that can stop some forms of cancer temporarily – leukemia, the terrible child-killer, for instance. However, as flies learn to live with DDT, cancer cells change their way of living to accommodate themselves to the new drugs developed to fight them.

No drug yet developed can be relied on to eradicate all cells of a cancer. But, in the process of trying new drugs, scientists have found evidence that cancer cells are enough different from normal human cells to be attacked by drugs which won't hurt normal cancerous body tissues.

During the coming year millions of dollars will be spent by the pharmaceutical industry and by publicly-supported research institutions. Thousands of chemicals will be put through elaborate tests against cancer. Half a dozen, at the most, may show promise.

Some of these chemicals are made in the pharmaceutical chemist's test tube, others are made by molds found in soils throughout the world. Drug manufacturers carefully encourage these molds to manufacture hundreds of compounds, some of which the human chemist is unable to imagine or to create synthetically.

The pharmaceutical industry is engaged in a "crash program" to discover better anti-cancer drugs. Several of the drugs now in standard use to postpone the fatal outcome of leukemia were developed in industry laboratories. Two new industry-developed agents are now being tested against leukemia by scientists at the famed Sloan-Kettering Institute in New York.

So far these drugs have only been able to prolong the life of patients incurably ill with the disease, but one of these days, the scientists maintain, this prolongation will enable a leukemia-stricken child to live on into the age of truly effective anti-cancer compounds.

Two Hearts That Beat As Five

THE HEART-SHAPED diamond earrings worn by Marjorie Lord commemorate a big day in her life on TV where she plays "Cathy" TV wife of Danny Thomas. The earrings were a present from the "groom", marking their TV marriage uniting not only the hearts of "Cathy" and "Danny", but also the lives of their three children by previous marriages. The warm, human and often hilarious adventures of this fivesome spark The Danny Thomas Show on CBS. Miss Lord sentimentally wears her earrings as much off camera as on. The diamonds are very real and are held securely in palladium, a precious metal of the platinum family. Many women prefer the added comfort of palladium earrings due to its light weight. Platinum and palladium are highly favored by jewelry designers because their gleaming whiteness enhances the sparkle of precious stones.

PLAN TO EXPAND PRESENT BEACH 150 FEET

Plans to expand the bathing area of theTown Beach from its present 110 feet to 260 feet were announced by the Planning Board at the Selectmen's meeting Monday evening.

Planning Board members Danny Gillis and William Beers met with the Selectmen in an open meeting, to discuss the Boards budget and the articles to be placed in the warrant. The amount requested by the Planning Board for beach improvements had been cut by the Selectmen but was re-instated last evening after an explanation by Mr. Gillis and Mr. Beers.

Mr. Gillis, who acted as spokesman, said that an estimate received from the J. J. Cronin Co. gave a $1,700 figure to dragline the area which extends from the present beach toward Grove Ave., bulldoze it and fill it with gravel and sand where needed. This would include re-locating the boulders and rubbish now in the area.

While Selectman Frank Hagerty proclaimed Silver Lake as Wilmington's greatest recreational asset, Chairman Nicholas DeFelice fretted over pollution if too many people were allowed to use the beach at once. These comments came about as the result of another Planning Board suggestion, a proposal to place an article before the Town Meeting to take the land and buildings next to the Town owned land on Grove Ave., in order to extend the beach further in future years.

Mr. Hagerty consulted with the Board of Health, meeting in the Town Hall at the time, and was told that the Lake could safely hold 8,000 bathers without danger of pollution. Cost of the land taking was estimated at $25,000. Donald Kidder felt that the Town could not afford that amount next year. Despite protests by Mr. Hagerty that the value of the land would increase, a thought seconded by Mr. Courtney, the final consenus found the two Boards agreeing to postpone the land taking articles until a later date.

Other budget figures, including a $250 increase for secretarial help were approved by the Selectmen who praised the Planning Board for their past performances.

Melting Snow May Mean Heating $$ Lost Forever

Here's a puzzler. Why does snow melt off one roof, yet remain in a heavy blanket on a similar house next door, as the photograph shows?

The answer is escaping heat. In the house on the right, enough heat is rising through the ceiling and attic to melt the snow, even though the outside temperature was 7 degrees below freezing when the photo was taken.

Snow remains on the roof of the house next door because heat is not escaping. It is staying inside where it belongs.

This is a good illustration of why thick insulation is important to home-owners. Snow melting off a roof in sub-freezing temperatures means that heating fuel is being wasted. In effect, the furnace is futilely trying to heat the great outdoors. The result is that the heating system operates almost constantly on cold days, burning fuel unnecessarily.

Mineral wool insulation installed in recommended thicknesses cuts heat loss to a minimum. Insulation engineers recommend at least four inches of mineral wool in ceilings and three inches in walls. Floors over crawl spaces and other unheated areas need at least a two-inch thickness of insulation.

A house well insulated with mineral wool is more comfortable, since temperatures stay uniform and walls stay warm. Fuel waste is stopped, since mineral wool reduces heat loss so sharply that heating bills can be cut by as much as 40 percent.

Owners of existing houses who have cold weather problems such as drafts, cold rooms, and excessively high heating costs, can have mineral wool blown into walls and ceilings needing insulation by a professional contractor.

Thick batts and blankets are available for new home construction and for do-it-yourself projects.

After 30 Years of Remodeling

Historic Shack Now Palatial Home

Thirty years is a long time to spend on any do-it-yourself project, but anyone who visits the rambling Colonial home of Jay Perine in Rockland County, N.Y., will agree every minute and effort put into the project was well worthwhile.

In 1928, Perine, a New York City advertising executive, bought the crumbling, 200-year-old shack shown in the "before" photo with the express purpose of making a Colonial-style mansion out of it.

He began work at once, and hasn't stopped since. Today the rambling 10-room house on 20 acres of forest land north of New York City, is a landmark in an area where pre-Revolutionary War homes abound.

Perine, who was a professional photographer for 15 years and who recently sang a concert in the Carnegie Recital Hall, did all the work himself with the occasional aid of two brothers and a sister. And he insists he has more projects in mind.

"The next job will be a new, all-white roof of asphalt shingles over that old metal roof up there," Perine said. "I want a white roof because it reflects heat."

Perine's desire for a heat-reflecting roof is a good illustration of his attitude toward the entire remodeling project: comfort first, Colonial authenticity second. Even the most critical observer will agree that both have been well served.

As an example, the house, which has four bedrooms, a music room, two baths, a giant living room, and dining room with fireplace, is thickly insulated with mineral wool in walls and ceilings.

Above, 200-year-old Rockland County, N.Y. house as it looks today. At right, the same house as it appeared 30 years ago before remodeling.

Part of the insulation was installed at the sacrifice of a few original plaster walls which were filled with a mixture of corn cobs, twigs, and bark—the "insulation" of George Washington's day. This had to be removed before fireproof mineral wool could be installed.

"I hated to see those walls go," says Perine, "but comfort came first. Besides, can you imagine the cost of heating a house this size without insulation?"

One place where Perine didn't have to sacrifice Colonial authenticity was in adding new doors and windows or replacing old ones. He obtained Colonial-style double hung windows and panel doors of ponderosa pine from a local building materials dealer. These stock windows and doors are copies from originals made by Colonial craftsmen.

Perine confesses that in 1928 he was a bit overwhelmed by the enormity of the task that lay ahead to make a home out of the ramshackle building he bought.

"But I'd do it all over again, gladly, and I recommend it to anyone who likes to work with his hands as I do," he says.
